Shell is a pioneer of the natural gas industry. From exploration and production of natural gas resources to processing and transport to markets, we finance and deliver some of the largest and most complex gas projects in the world. Our presence across the value chain gives us an unrivalled global position in natural gas amongst private energy companies.

For more than 40 years, we have helped lead the way in producing liquefied natural gas (LNG) and delivering it to markets around the world. Today, Shell has a diverse, large and growing LNG supply portfolio. We are the world's largest equity producer of LNG and hold a leading position in the world's key LNG markets of Asia-Pacific, Europe and US. As one of the major players in the LNG sector, Shell can apply its excellent understanding of the industry to help meet growing global energy demand.
